Permission to Copy Print & Digital Versions and to Catalog and Circulate Print Version

I retain copyright of my thesis. This permission is nonexclusive, i.e., I may choose to grant the same rights to others. I grant the College permission to:

- copy my thesis for preservation purposes.
- convert my thesis, without changing the content, to any other format or medium necessary for preservation and storage.
- create a bibliographic record for this Work and display that record in the Library Catalog.
- circulate single print copies of the Work to authorized PCOM Library users and to extramural users through Interlibrary Loan on a not-for-profit basis.

Permission to Provide Internet Access through the PCOM Institutional Repository

Objectives for the institutional repository are to:

- provide open access to the College's research and scholarship;
- expedite the dissemination of the College's research and scholarship;
- create global visibility for the College's scholarly output;
- enhance the reputation of the College by showcasing the work of both faculty and students;
- collect content in a single location;
- store and preserve digital assets, including published and unpublished literature (e.g., articles, theses, dissertations, technical reports), teaching materials, lectures, posters, datasets, and archival materials (College publications, yearbooks, histories).

Note: Permission must be granted by both the Student Author and Faculty Advisor.

I grant Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine the nonexclusive right to:

- post a digital version of my thesis in the PCOM Institutional Repository. I understand that making my thesis/dissertation available on the Internet will expedite dissemination of my research and enhance the scholarly profile of the College. I, as author, retain copyright. I am free to publish my work in its present or future versions elsewhere, to post it on other web sites including my own, and to request removal of my work from the institutional repository at any future date.
- permit users of the Institutional Repository to download and use my thesis for personal use of a non-commercial nature.
