Dear Doctor:

Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine is proud to present the 2019-2020 CME Series. This calendar of CME programs, presented by the College as a service to the profession, offers a rich variety of topics of clinical importance to the osteopathic physician and other health professionals in practice.

In addition to our one-day seminars, we will provide several live webinars, as well as excellent extended programs this year, such as Advanced Emergency Medicine March 2–5, 2020, and our 27th Annual Family Weekend program in Hershey, June 25–28, 2020. Our Hershey program provides high quality seminars focusing on family medicine and internal medicine. This event has become an annual favorite among PCOM alumni and their families and it continues to grow each year. Please remember to register early for Hershey accommodations.

Again this year, we will be hosting several Fall Webinar Seminars. These live webinars are simply another way PCOM is making it easier to obtain updated information as well as provide more AOA Category 1-A credit.

Enrollment in PCOM’s continuing medical education programs is open to all health care practitioners, including osteopathic and allopathic physicians, nurse practitioners, nurses and physician assistants.

REGISTRATION

To register for any of our scheduled programs and/or webinars, go to <http://ContEd.pcom.edu> and click on “View Catalog”. Using the “filter by” drop down boxes to help narrow down the program choices. Find the appropriate program and continue through the registration process.

If you would like to receive our program flyers and brochures, please call the PCOM CME Office at (215) 871-6348 or e-mail alexandbo@pcom.edu.

We look forward to seeing you on-campus!

Cordially,

Kenneth J. Veit, DO, MBA, FACOPF
Provost, Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean
